HOW THE "CAPTAIN" CAME TO COMMANDEER A DISUSED UNDERGROUND STATION

In early 1946, a band of ne'er-do-wells and Scoundrels discovered a hidden gem in the subterranean tunnels beneath London's bustling Soho. It was the disused Kingly Court Underground Station. Once used as an emergency air raid shelter during the war, it had been a haven for all manner of folks. They'd dragged in dusty lampshades, higgledy-piggledy furniture, doilies and mismatched crockery in an attempt to turn the place into a 'home away from home'.

Upon discovering the Station, the Scoundrels were keen to reignite the post-war spirit in their new-found illicit base. Here, they could engage in their nocturnal escapades - flouting the rules of rationing, selling top-notch bootlegging cocktails and throwing sensational swinging parties late into the night!

THE SCOUNDRELS STRIKE AGAIN

Located above ground just next door to the original, they found... the Ticket Hall. Once a bustling station for busy commuters, the deserted space was yet again been commandeered by the underground Scoundrels of Cahoots.

The Ticket Hall pays tribute to what previously lay there, with a station clock, vintage advertisements and fading train maps. Old split-flap timetables that used to display a straphangers train schedule, now showcase Scoundrel specials, and the announcement megaphones that at one time bellowed travel updates, now boom out electro-swing. An eclectic all-day cocktail bar, perfect for afternoon tea and top-notch tipples.

What the scoundrels found stirring directly below the Ticket Hall, was something entirely different.

What was once the nervous system of the station, the Signal Station is a maze of switches, dials and flashing lights, now flogging bootlegged hooch, throwing raucous late-night shindigs and showcasing live music fit to broadcast nationwide.

Stay in the know @CAHOOTSLONDON.

DEAR SCOUNDRELS,

Welcome to Cahoots, where the spirits run high and drinks never run dry - a playground for London's scoundrels!

When we came across this disused underground station, we knew we had to set up this home-from-home that you see before you.

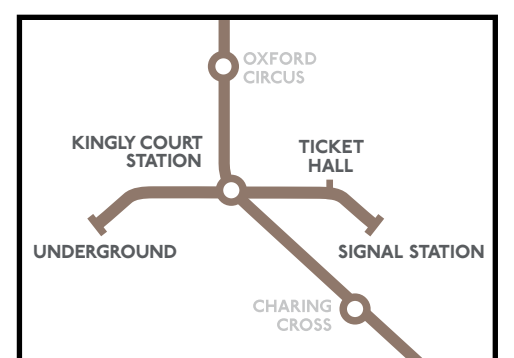

A place that would allow our friends and fellow scoundrels to escape the hum-drum of post-war Britain. We wanted dazzling cocktails galore, singalongs and good-time swing - a place for a jolly good knees-up!

So, it is with great pleasure that we ask you to join us for an evening 'in Cahoots'!

Over and out, THE Captain
